

Exhibition :Oct 8 – 31, 2015

On the exhibition: The House.... will be displayed in the "Zezeze" Gallery showing Architectural projects. The artists explore the interrelationships between the areas she dealt with throughout her life.

Did elements of "home" affect Israel's ordinary artistry? Did the practice of art influence her day-to-day work as an interior designer?

Over the course of the rich career of the regular artist, over 20 solo exhibitions, the theme of the house and residence did not get any expression. In the current exhibition, the regular exhibits these aspects of her work for the first time through numerous design, 2D and 3D projects, some of which combine the fields of design and sculpture.

In the "Home - This Motto" exhibition, which will be featured in the "Zehzeze" Architecture Gallery during October, Israeli artist and designer examines the usual interrelationships between the areas she has been working with throughout her life. Some examples of students' teaching and practice methods at the Academy of Art and Design fifty years ago.

Alongside them are professional articles published in the newspaper "Maariv" and "You" in the late 1960s, as well as excerpts from the radio program "Your Home", which were submitted by Israel in 1971-1972. The exhibition presents many programs - all hand-drawn - of apartments, houses, shops, and offices that she has designed over the years in her professional work. These programs, designed to guide their tenants in the process of building, renovating, and purchasing products present a different facet in which home and residential design has changed in Israel over the past few decades.
